THE STOVE VERSUS THE FIRE PLACE.

Substantial chimneys to two story houses will require each about five thousand bricks, and cost, when completed, sixty dollars each; whether inside or outside, it is a mere accident if they answer the purpose for which they are built, for who is there that has not scorched his shin in front of a roasting fire, while his back was freezing, in very cold weather? Ordinary plantation fire places will consume weekly a cord of wood, and withal leave the room as cold as if there had been no fire kindled. Hourly, during cold days, the fire has to be replenished, and the hottest part of the chimney is its top, for nine-tenths of the heat escapes up the flue. The chunks may be drawn together, and fresh wood thrown on, but all to little purpose half the time, for we Southerners are proverbially expert in leaving doors open behind us in cold weather. Possibly, cheerful fires may have partially heated the sitting room, for instance; a member of the family wishes to retire, "only for a minute;" the minute is prolonged to an hour; the door stands ajar all the while, until the draft of fresh air chills the room and inmates, when on must go a few more logs to re-supply the lost heat. This policy, so universally practised at the South, costs money. I care not if the wood is burned to get rid of it. The tree must be felled, the branches lopped off, the wood hauled, then cut again to suit the fire place, and the fire built; every one of which acts has to be done by hired help. True, the farmers say, the land had to be cleared, and the farm hands cut and hauled the wood, and others build the fires when they having nothing else to do, &c., &c.

Against just such fallacious ideas I am contending. Clearing land may at a future time be opposed as questionable economy, and surely "hands" that are hired by the year should never be so idle as to have time to do work that costs nothing.

But I am asked, what substitute have you for the chimney? I answer, unhesitatingly, the stove.—As the cooking stove has supplanted the Dutch oven, so should the heating stove supersede the fireplace in most of our rooms.

To-day is cold and icy, the wind blows briskly from the northeast. Three hours ago I entered the room in which I am writing, and for the first time this Fall, kindled a fire in a stove that an able-bodied man might carry under his arm, using three small sticks of oak wood twelve inches long, and two smaller pieces of dry pine. In fifteen minutes I had to move off from the stove, and to this time the remotest corner of the room is perfectly comfortable.

FAITH AS A REMEDIAL AGENT.—The history of medicine is filled with accounts of instances of the supposed discovery of specific for the cure of intractable diseases. Many of the specifics which at one time and another have been extolled as sure cures of consumption, and their use in the hands of their discoverers has been attended by cases of remarkable cures. The discoverer of the supposed specific possessed all confidence in its healing powers and prescribed it for others, earnestly assuring them that he, at last, had discovered the great remedy against this terrible disease, and that he could surely cure them. Often has it happened that thus a few cases of actual consumption in its first stages have been inspired with the degree of faith sufficient to cure them. Then the fame of the medicine spreads, and other physicians, having less confidence in it, and who, as a matter of course, could inspire less faith in their patients, have prescribed the remedy. The result has almost invariably been that the remedy failed to effect such cures as it had been reputed to have produced, and it speedily fell into disuse.

The objection to a stove is trite, that it dries as well as heats the air of a room, and produces headache.—There is science in using a stove as there is in the use of all implements, and it may be made to re-supply the very moisture it destroys. A tea kettle, sauce pan, boiler or any open vessel filled with water and placed upon the stove will furnish by evaporation the necessary moisture as rapidly as needed.—D. WYATT ALKEN, in Rural-Croonian for December.

Rhubarb leaves scattered around will kill and drive away crickets.

ROTATION.—A judicious and careful rotation of crops is absolutely necessary in maintaining the fertility of the soil. This needs no demonstration, for it is universally admitted. But how to rotate to secure the greatest advantages, is the main question. No specific can be given to suit every case, because "circumstances alter cases" very much in regard to this point. The system that would succeed on one farm would utterly fail on another, and vice versa. Governed by general principles, the farmer must decide the matter for himself. Each crop extracts from the soil the elements essential to its growth and maturity, and by continuous cropping, however judicious the rotation may be, the soil will eventually be exhausted. Hence the elements abstracted must be returned to the soil in the shape of fertilizers. This settles one point—that farmers must keep stock, and the nearer they come to keeping stock enough to consume what their farms produce, the nearer they come to the most improved culture.

The usual rotation is from the soil—corn, oats or barley, wheat, and then grass. In good soil two crops of wheat can be grown, clover being sown on the first, in the spring, which will furnish one crop, and one to plough under for second crop of wheat on which grass is sown for future meadow or pasture lands. A prominent agriculturalist recommends the following six years' rotation: First year, corn, potatoes; second, corn, clover; third, clover ploughed in and sowed with wheat in the fall; then timothy and clover sowed on the wheat in the spring of the year; then let it lie in grass two years.

Other systems of rotation have their advantages suited to the surrounding circumstances of soil, climate, etc. In wheat districts, where the soil rests on limestone or plaster, a simple rotation of clover two years and wheat one is found to be good, always promising that plenty of manure is returned to the soil.

How to ESTIMATE THE PROFITS OF A FARM.—The farmer lives in his own house. The use of the house, which he does not pay for, is as much a part of his income as the money which a salaried man pays for rent, is of his, and should be counted as such in an estimate of the profits of the farm. All things produced on the farm and consumed on the farmer's table including the vegetables from the garden, the eggs and milk used in cooking, are as much a part of his income as the money paid for such things out of his salary is of the salaried man. If a farmer gives his wife and children a pleasant ride to town, using his own horse and wagon the value of their use is part of his income from his farm, as truly as the money the man pays out of his salary for carriage hire is of his.

The correct rule for estimating the income from a farm is substantially this: Give credit for every article produced, used, or expended in any way whatever no matter how small in value, as well as for cash received for products sold, and for increased value of farm property and charge against the farm for interest on capital invested, and for all expenditures. The farmer that will do this from year to year, will not so much feel like complaining of the unprofitableness of farming as compared with other pursuits. The fact is, not one in a hundred farmers take into consideration the luxury and comforts of fresh eggs, butter, milk, fruits, etc., that they would have to pay high prices for if they lived in towns, or do without them.

Medicines.

DR. TUTT'S VEGETABLE LIVER PILLS.

A mild aperient and gentle purgative, recommended for the cure of all derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels. By their timely use much sickness is prevented. The test of many years have proven them to be the safest, surest and best of all the pills ever offered to the public. They purify the blood, remove all obstructions and restore the diseased system to perfect health. As an Antidote to Chills and Fever they have no equal. For Sick Headache and Bilious Colic they are a sure cure. For Constipation, Rheumatism, Piles, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, Nervousness, a positive remedy. For Female Irregularities, very well a single dose stimulates the stomach and bowels, restores the appetite, and imparts vigor to the system. Sold everywhere. Office, 15 Murray Street, New York.

Dr. Tutts' Hair Dye is easily applied, imparts a beautiful black or brown, and acts like magic. The best in the world. Sold by all druggists. Price, $1.00 a box.

DR. TUTT'S EXPECTORANT

The ghastly record of deaths that result from pulmonary affections is frightful. There is no disease that is so insidious in its attack as consumption. By the neglect of "slight colds" they soon become deep seated and defy remedies which, if applied at the outset, would have been easily overcome. Dr. Tutts' Expectorant has proven itself the most valuable Lung Balsam ever discovered. A distinguished clergyman of New York, pronounced it the "best business of the nineteenth century," and says "no family should be without it." It is pleasant to the taste, and a single dose will often remove the most obstinate cough. Office, 15 Murray Street, New York. APR. 18, 42—tf.

SIMMONS' HEPATIC PILLS OR LIVER CURE

Is pronounced by Dr. C. A. Simmons, who was the former proprietor of Simmons' Liver Pills, as being far superior to any other Liver Medicine now offered to the public. It has a large circulation and is still gathering ground. Although this is a new preparation we have no hesitations in recommending it, as it is a good preparation and certifies from a good preparation as our land can furnish.

DR. W. F. PRATT, Sole Agent for this place.
